Adelphi, Spring Break My Heart

The wind hits
My eyes close
And out comes youth
Sound sounded like your voice
Ringing through my ears
You said it's time to go, I only let it show
You said this feeling in my gut, the longest week of my life
Seems easier staring at the same sky every time we say goodnight
I'm counting down the days, and I can't count the ways
Come friday maybe I'll get out of bed
And I'll write letters
So that my heart can make me feel better
I'll write this song for you
And I never thought this week would ever end
Since morning
Can't wait to see your smile again
My heart is aching now
The pedal's to the floor
My mind is racing to recall
Memories of early morn
My eyes fell into yours
I lay there face up on the floor
I hold my breath you sit back
The best night of my life
Seems easier staring at the stars
Unsink your eyes
I'm counting down the days but I can't count the ways
That the rings cuz my fingers shut my eyes
And I'll write letters so my heart can make me feel better
I'll write this song for you and I never thought this week would end
Since morning can't wait to see your smile again
I'll write letters so that my heart can make me feel better
I'll write this song for you
I never thought this week would ever end
Since morning can't wait to see your smile again
Life is easier when we aren't miles apart
Spring broke my heart
