Rebeka, Today

When I was a child
I was smiling wide
And used to sing and ride
On the blackest horse
In my magic world
I used to play with my dad
Watching weird cartoons
Finding groovy loops
In strange Japanese tunes
It felt so good simply to use my heart

I never thought I was longing for today
I never thought I'd be singing for real these days
I never thought I would need that child every day
I never thought I would feel so good and fine today

I am a child living adult life
I know you'll find me kind
Sometimes I'm a freak
And I'm acting weak
I do not know what to say
Then I sleep all day and sing all night
I'm far away from daylight
I forget to breathe
What I truly need
I do not know what to sing

I never thought I was longing for today
I never thought I'd be singing for real these days
I never thought I would need that child every day
I never thought I would feel so good and fine today
