Spiritfall, Missing Passion

I cannot believe now what I see in you
And I just cannot be now what you want me to
But with this breath I hold inside all the pain that's in your eyes
And I just want to be now what I see in you

Why don't you take a look within?
You might have to see what you've been missing
Why don't you want to; it's over now

I've been forced to see everything I want to hide
Without passion I bury things, I can't decide
Missing times I should have known
With nothing to call my own
Without passion I bury things I see in you

Why don't you take a look within?
You might have to see what you've been missing
Why don't you want to; it's over now

When I try to undo the damage done
I'm forced to look through the eyes
Of someone who's changed to fit the ideal
But it's over now