Bob Catley, Heart Of Stone

Tell me how you hope to make amends
Does the means justify the ends, you can't defend Promises lay scattered all around
You kicked me even though I was down, down on the ground

Truth is simple, yes, I know
Guess I'll just get up and go
Say you're sorry, it's too late
You played your cards and sealed your fate

I can't take it
I don't want your heart made of stone
So find another fool, leave me alone
I don't need it
I won't feed it, breaking my bones
So find another fool, leave me alone

Did you ever stop and think of me
To satisfy your inner vanity, now I see
Hopeless from the start, I should have known
Taken in by your heart made of stone, I'm not alone

Truth is simple, yes, I know
Guess I'll just get up and go
Say you're sorry, it's too late
You played your cards and sealed your fate

I can't take it
I don't want your heart made of stone
So find another fool, leave me alone
I don't need it
I won't feed it, breaking my bones
So find another fool, leave me alone
