James Blake, Modern Soul

I know a crossroads where I see him, see them
I want to be a lover, I want it to be over
So I swim to you while I'm sleeping
Through sage green rivers of England
I see the scenery changes, changes
I want it to be over, I want it to be over
When I don't think of you, the willpower
What I didn't see was I was talking to so many people at once
I had no idea I was
I had no idea of the difference between
The way I saw your face and the way it was

Because of a few songs /8x

I remember laughing; to take that away from you
To take that away from you; I remember laughing
I remember laughing; to take that away from you
To take that away from you; I remember laughing
The smaller the waves; you let me down
No longer I will defend you
The smaller the waves; you let me down
No longer I will defend you (because of a few songs)
