East 17, Thunder

chorus
when the thunder calls you,
from the mountain's high,
its time to spread your wings and fly, (spread your wings and fly)
when the thunder calls you,
under purple sun
to the plase where horses run when i saw your face i knew you were the one in a sky that filleds with rain a ray of sun i called you on the phone said your happy on your own when i heard you bodie cry for my loove
your bodies calling me
your bódies calling
i think im fallin (woooow)
chorus
a picture in my mind a vision in a dream when the storm destroyed the bridge i walked across have you ever fell alone when you stood within i croud on a path you thougt you knew but feel alone
your bodies calling me
your bódies calling
i think im fallin (woooow)
chorus
i all confused like a child whit a choice of toys so much to gain so much to lose like a pain you endure more then enjoy
i guess im goin crazy everyones tellin me so do you feel the same well its all i need to know
chorus
when the thunder calls you (when the thunder)
from the mountain's high
its time to spread your wings and fly
(spread your wings and fly)
when the thunder calls you (when it calls you)
under purple sun
to the place were horses run (were the horses run)
when the thunder calls you
(when it calls you)
from the mountain's high (from a mountin high)
its time to spread your wings and fly
(spread your wings and fly)
when the thunder calls you (when the thunder)
to the place where horses run