Bradley Hathaway, Like Socrates Loved The Trut

Like Socrates loved the truth,

Like Sherlock Holmes loved to prove,

Like a child loves balloons,

Like a zoologist loves baboons,

So do I love you (So do I love you)

So do I love you (So do I love you)

Like a pilot loves his wings,

Like an angel loves to sing,

Like a ballerina loves to dance,

Like a criminal loves a second chance,

So do I love you (So do I love you)

So do I love you (So do I love you)

Like a baker loves dough,

Like a philosopher loves to know,

Like a comic loves laughs,

Like a toddler loves a bubble bath,

So do I love you (So do I love you)

So do I love you (So do I love you)

With a love that will last,

Through shadows that are cast,

From life and its pains

The cold winds and the rains,

So I will always run my fingers,

Through your hair.

So I will always be at,

Your side, right there.

Like Johnny loves June,

Like flowers love to bloom,

Like a knight loves a princess,

Like a mother bird loves to nest,

So do I love you (So do I love you)

So do I love you (So do I love you)