Diana King, Love Yourself

Little sister spends her whole life searching,
For the man who can touch her heart
But the lover that she's with ain't working
I hate to see her cry, why can't she realize She deserves a better situation,
Then a fist and a kiss goodnight
I wish she'd take another's invitation To see that real love, is more than being tough
Sister, don't be afraid to let him go
You got to love yourself,
If you want somebody else to love you You've got to love yourself,
You've got to reach inside,
If you're ever gonna find someone to love you
You got to love yourself
I don't wanna preach the bible
I just wanna reach the truth
A loverman shouldn't be your rival Only to raise a hand, never to understand There's a voice inside every person That can speak when the heart is numb You've got to scream before the body worsens You're just a step away, from being free of pain
Sister, don't be afraid to let him go
You got to love yourself,
If you want somebody else to love you
You got to love yourself,
You've got to reach inside,
If you're ever gonna find someone to love you
You got to love yourself,
If you want somebody
else to love you
You've got to reach inside,
