Diffuser, Avoid The Friction

My generation as a nation has a reputation for looking out for themselves
Obnoxious and self-righteous
I realize the warning signs are so alive since I hear
Your friends have been talking shit
And now you wanna bite your lip

Dont tell me to avoid the friction
Im one step closer to infliction
Why are your actions contradictive
Of the words that you say

I've seen your kind a million times and still I find the one thing
That you could never get around
The repercussion turns you out
Your ignorance and arrogance ignite a tolerance
That pushes me to react
I think you better watch your back

So typical to say the words you say
Then shuffle around the blame
I think you better walk away
Before I get in your face