Dubaldo Marie Claire, Rachel

RACHEL (Marie Claire D'Ubaldo) Rachel, you never wear tights Rachel, you're fighting for your rights nobody can take you seriously, they say you're still too young and Rachel, you would have liked to be a guy But it's your life, it's your own disguise and it's your right, it's your own way to fight Rachel is having little fun Rachel hardly ever smiles nobody can understand what she carries in her mind and Rachel is surrounded by a lie But it's your life, it's your own disguise
and it's your right, it's your own way to fight and it's your choice, not their voice cause their pride won't let them learn And Rachel, do it any way you like cause you won't dare if they try to change your style they screamed you were wrong now you don't wanna be that silent soul anymore Rachel is feeling all the time that people would rather turn their backs but it's her life, it's her right there's little for real, she finally understands And Rachel has found a little time to smile cause now she knows better what it's all about she feels strong, Rachel has a story of her own