

1997, Hey Darlin'

Hey darlin', you paint a pretty picture.
The sun is clouded, but we'll find our way home.
Yes, we'll find our way home.

Casting shadows on the pavement, dancing toe to toe, is this all you are? Is this all you hope to be?
Oh no, it's just all that I know.
Is it enough? And are you happy? Do you need more?

You had my heart, what more could you want? (Can't watch you watch me walking away.)
Don't you care, don't you care enough to let me go?
You know that it meant everything, now everything feels far too wrong.

Little girl, listen well,
but you must promise that you'll never ever tell.
I speak like fire, and it burns your ears,
but who will wipe away your tears?

You had my heart, what more could you want? (Can't watch you watch me walking away.)
Don't you care, don't you care enough to let me go?
You know that it meant everything, now everything feels far too wrong.

If only you had words to make this sadness I feel go away. (2x)

You had my heart, what more could you want?
Don't you care, don't you care enough to let me go?
You know that it meant everything, now everything feels far too wrong.

Hey darlin', you paint a pretty picture.
The sun is clouded, but we'll find our way home.
Yes, we'll find our way home.
