Jack Foster III, Inside My Mind

There's a place I can go when my heart loses touch and I barely can tell that it's beating I can think of the life that you put into my love when I'm tired there's a place I can go

There's a place I can go when I've seen way too much when I'm empty with confidence fleeting I can close my weary eyes and turn on my indigo head when I'm down there's a place I can go

Inside my mind, into your arms
Into your arms, your arms inside my mind
Inside my mind, into your arms
in my embrace you're here inside my mind

When I'm there I can feel all the love in your heart
When I'm there I can feel your sensation We can dance on the sand make love under the moon to be with you a place I can go

Inside my mind, into your arms
Into your arms, your arms inside my mind
Inside my mind, into your arms
in my embrace you're here inside my mind

There's a place that I go now that you're so far away to regain what I've lost, to remember I sit back all alone and imagine you're there when I'm lonely a place I can go

Inside my mind, into your arms
Into your arms, your arms inside my mind
Inside my mind, into your arms
in my embrace you're here inside my mind
