Two Feet, Play The Part

An intermission of your fate
Close your eyes, God gives, or takes it away
You try and forget all your hate
Anger thrives, trapped in a steel crate

And you’re heading south
And talking too loud
The time isn't now
You breathe in and out

I'm thinking of march
A crushing false start
No actress and you didn’t Play the part