Luna Halo, The Fool

You say you're quite the actress but I don't really know for sure
And it's hard to be rejected
When you don't know what you're living for But talk is cheap
when you're tongue is where your heart should be
Your lies have been detected
And I can't take it anymore

'Cause every time you same something predictable
It's the same damn thing I've heard before
I never thought that love could ever be so cruel
But every time we touch so unforgettable
You know you turn me out, I lose control
It's like you know that it's my role to play the fool

The warning bells are ringing
I hear them start to take their toll
Your lovely eyes are changing
You're not the one you were before
You wear the mask
And we dance pirouettes until the sun is cast
The masquerade has ended
This charade is never going to last

'Cause every time you same something predictable
It's the same damn thing I've heard before
You've got to give me something I can hold on to
But every time we touch so unforgettable
You know you turn me out, I lose control
It's like you know that it's my role to play the fool