Mel Tillis, Another Bridge To Burn

I've had to burn most every bridge I've crossed
It seems like everyone I've loved I've lost
When I met you I thought my luck had turned
But our love's just another bridge to burn
I'll soon light the match and move on I've already lingered much too long
Now I'm so hurt and you're so unconcerned and our love's just another bridge to burn
[steel]
Sometimes one must love enough for two and that's how it's been with me and you
I'll see your face no matter where I'll turn and our love's just another bridge to burn
I'll soon light the match...
