Mikky Ekko, Pressure Pills

Pressure pills, just drink
Wash it down, don't panic
Smoke again, stop talking
And think of the end
And think of the end

Heartbreak, heartache, apocalyptic guard fate
I already know the ending
But where does start take
Till these bruises won't come in the morning
It's a hard day, think you should want a fair warning

Wake up from a deep sleep and
I can feel the sea creep in silence
Cold sweat, heart heating, still hear mama crying
Whose live you believe in, boy?

How does one person makes a difference
Feels like a little kid asking for forgiveness
Wake up gifted, people say chosen
Came about a cold world, people stay frozen so
Keep your body moving, keep your body moving
Odds are against, yeah they tell me that we losing
Sanity in traction, cause and reaction
Nobody's waiting for you

Pressure pills, just drink
Wash it down, don't panic
Smoke again, stop talking
And think of the end
And think of the end
Pressure pills, just drink
Wash it down, don't panic
Smoke again, stop talking
And think of the end
And think of the end

But I don't wanna die this way
But maybe it's the price you pay
But I don't wanna die this way
For a certain kind of life this the price you pay
I've been living in the dark so long
Every spark cools on, and it's a fire looking light away

Pressure pills, just drink
Wash it down, don't panic
Smoke again, stop talking
And think of the end
And think of the end
Pressure pills, just drink
Wash it down, don't panic
Smoke again, stop talking
And think of the end
And think of the end
