RuPaul, My Love Sees No Color (Matheos' Danci

writers: RuPaul/ Tom Trujillo

Black or white, tonight is right
Forget about whatever you've been told.
Unlock the door - unlike before - open up a window to your soul
I get down with cocoa brown - sassy red I go to town
And behold - young or old - and if I can be so bold
To let you know - I dig mellow yellow
Catch my flow - and every color of the rainbow.

It don't matter whatever the skin you're in
I need to feel y'electricity
The frequency - between you and me
My love sees no color

If a fool believes, just what he sees
Why can't he see the similarities
He separates - discriminates
Gay or straight-whatever the case may be
Been around - north and south - booragoon to Tennessee
Know by now - that beauty - is within and not skin deep
You should know - everybody's got a soul
Every color of the rainbow.

And time will reveal - that the way I feel
Is the way it was intended to be - each and everybody's free!
