The Residents, I Gave Myself To You

I gave you my heart, you tore it apart
That wasn't nice to do
I gave you my spleen, you called it obscene
And then you split it in two
I gave you my liver, you threw it in the river
But I prayed you were true
Now I'm falling to bits, I've got nothing that fits
'Cause I gave myself to you, I gave myself to you
I gave you my eyes, you said they told lies
But what they said was true
I gave you my lips, you just wiggled your hips
Well you sure looked cute the way you do
I gave you my chest and the bits you like best
But you said that we were through
Now I'm one of those jerks that's got nothing that works
'Cause I gave myself to you, I gave myself to you
When I gave you my brain, you said it was plain
I did not have a clue
So I gave you my feet, I thought it was neat
But you said "So what else is new?"
I gave you my veins, you said they were chains
To hold you down like glue
But the chains are on me, I'm restrained as can be
'Cause I gave myself to you, I gave myself to you
