Tiamat, Meliae

You ask for forgiveness but your lips they are still lying
You might be forgiven but the angels are still crying
But you're alive so please try one more time

And all dirt you throw so deep down in that well
Will be there waiting for you the day you entered Hell
But you're alive so please try one more time

You have walked these roads alone, you've spent you time with faith
Without any answers found and now time is running late
But you're alive so please try one more time

You might think I'm not any better and you'd ask me what i would do
But sincerely love you still and these thing they are part of you
But you're alive so please try one more time

We have left the bridges burning for the sake of trying
And as long as you are happy I don't care if our love is dying
But you're alive so please try one more time
