A Blinding Silence, When In Doubt

I call out your name when running in circles is all I can do. I'm playing these games of certain delusions revolved around you looking down falling into your eyes I'm playing these games of circles when in doubt of how this really is I just look and in your eyes is where I can see the truth running in circles in you You call out my name When running in circles is all you can do is all you can do you're playing these games of hurtful delusions when no one wants you looking down falling into your eyes I'm playing these games of circles when in doubt of how this really is I just look and in your eyes is where I can see the truth running in circles in you