A Fine Frenzy, Think Of You

it's one hundred and nine degrees in this crowded room, no room to breathe with walls as cold as a gallery this is no place for me such hard faces set in smoke, the smell lingers in my clothes, it's a bad night to be alone but that's the way it goes, and I think of you, whenever life gets me down I think of you whenever you're not around you rest your bones somewhere far from my own, yeah but you still pull me home

I thought I had it figured out in a brand new life with a great big house and green initials on the towels I should be happy now well, you've got yourself a family and you planted roots down by the sea I saw you once on the street, you didn't notice me but I think of you, whenever life gets me down I think of you whenever you're not around you rest your bones somewhere far from my own, yeah but you still pull me home just to put your mind at ease you don't owe me anything you paid me well in memories and I think of you, whenever life gets me down I think of you whenever you're not around you rest your bones somewhere far from my own, yeah but you still pull me home you still pull me home

you still pull me home