A Global Threat, Young And Dead

At the shows and on the street Some punks just wont accept you think differently The way you live it was the wrong way to be Vegetarian or not, drug free or drunk There's always someone who says youre not a punk They're always somebody who tells you that youre wrong We bitch about what we see on the daily news But we cant accept each others views Bow what will we do at the end of our fuse And now we're young and dead Instead of respecting our differences in thought We waste time arguing about whats right and what is not And some revert to all the violence they've been taught Opinions vary on what is Punk and what it does But its not anything until we've earned each others trust And if it ever happens it is by the fault of all of us There's two options out there for the youth Just two options and we've got to choose United we win, divided we lose And now we're young and dead Think about your views The lifestyle that you choose And find out what it means to you Some have had a negative outlook on it from the start How can you ignore when somethings comming from the heart If nothing can unite us and nothing's worth a chance Then why are we all singing what theyre telling us we can't You've buried any bridge we've come across And you're the reason for the battles we've lost When you fight your war just dont forget the cost And now we're young and dead Think about your views The lifestyle that you choose And find out what it means to you
