

Akron/Family, The Alps & Their Orange Evergree

Just when you've finally forgotten you're alive / your light (?)

That's exactly when they send you back

It comes together only to fall apart

You'll start again

You'll start over

For the others always only on the other side

What makes a side?

What makes another?

And in Switzerland the orange trees

Go by the sea

Or are they lakes?

But for the sake of the sunny mountainside that sits

Across the water body

From the mountain in the shade

And the baby bathers push me mountains (?)

For the valley it sends all swimming

We're reeling yes we're spinning

But importantly, together together together oh

But importantly, together together together oh

Things that are still

Sometimes appear to move

Things that are still

Sometimes they appear to move