Alan Jackson, 1976

Rockie burned up the movie screen and I was turnin seventeen Tie-dyed shirts and Levis jean, lookin cool at the Dairy Queen Tryin to impress a young woman in her Sunday dress

And that was 1976, didn't know who I was yet

A pretty little blonde haired girl stole my heart and changed my world Two kids and a moonlit sky, a little love on a Friday night

Built a fire that just wont guit, that was 1976

My high school days I packed away, set my sights on a bigger stage Jimmy Carter moved to DC, a Georgia boy just like me, life seemed easy Nothin much that we needed

That was 1976, didnt know who I was yet

A pretty little blonde haired girl stole my heart and changed my world

Two kids and a moonlit sky, a little love on a Friday night

Built a fire that just wont quit, that was 1976

[Instrumental Interlude]

Eight track tapes were still in style and Elvis was still alive

Wonder Woman sure looked fine, Bionic Man was still Prime Time

And that girl I liked, we kept on tryin till we got it right

And that was 1976, didnt know who I was yet

A pretty little blonde haired girl stole my heart and changed my world

Two kids and a moonlit sky, a little love on a Friday night

Built a fire that just wont quit, that was 1976

Yeah, that was 1976, didnt know who we were yet

Built a fire that just wont quit and that was 1976

We built a fire that just wont quit, that was 1976
