Alan Jackson, Like Red On A Rose

Like red on a rose When your lips first smiled at me I was captured instantly To each his own

Like blue in the sky
The gaze of your willing eyes
Touched something deep inside
The truth be known

That I love you like all little children love pennies And I love you cause I know that I can't do anything wrong You're where I belong Like red on a rose

And I love you like all little children love pennies And I love you like good times of which I've known many And I love you cause I know you give me a heart of my own You make my blood flow Like red on a rose
