

Alex Parks, Not Your Average Kind Of Girl

from the second i saw you, wanted it all.
something i couldn't keep, have just to hold.
always going for those crazy dreams,
they're always tearing me apart.
do i search for intrigue, something a little strange?
if i had all the flavours, i know i'd start again.

do you see where i'm coming from,
where i want to go?
how much I think, how much I feel.
that's something you'll need to see in me.
do you know what tonight could bring,
if we could only go where i dream?
that night slow. though that's what you'll see in me you know.
i'm not your average kind of girl.

so if you'll keep me in your mind, that's all i ask.
so i know i had an effect on you,
i'm out of the blue.
unknown face to what you've seen before. but hold for sure.
i won't drift too far.
do i search for intrigue, something a little strange?
if i had all the flavours, i know i'd start again.

do you see where i'm coming from,
where i want to go?
how much i think, how much i feel.
that's something you'll need to see in me.
do you know what tonight could bring,
if we could only go where i dream?
that night slow. though that's what you'll see in me you know.
i'm not your average kind of girl.
i'm not your average kind of girl.
i'm not your average kind of girl.