Alexi Murdoch, Dream About Flying

Pale light this morning Woke me Slow pain I feel Will not let me be

So much work to do I don't know if I can Trying so hard, so hard, so hard But I'm just one man

Five years old I climbed up on the wall My mother warned me but I took no heed Like all creatures great and small I took a fall and found out I could bleed

These days I'm afraid of everything Suppose cause everything will die Thought it was to love what they will lose So much easier to lie

Sometimes I fell like I'm drowning Actually it's more like most of the time But every now and then when I'm sleeping I still have a dream that I'm flying

And I wake up crying
