The color of a dove's blood
Matches my snow white neck
It is much sweeter than a baiser(kiss)
The scar of your fangs

Since the time I was a maiden
I had been waiting
For the little nightmare
Linking, spinning it around.

With Your graceful thorn foinding hand
I am grieved for as I sleep
And I wake in my moonlit coffin

Just merely to love you

Although people hide their heart in their chest
Instead in my jewelry box
I rear my heart

The too long Winter
I wish for it to be released
Inside your sorrow holding arms
And forever shine

The eternal love
That everyone hopes for
Only exists here from the beginning
That is why each time I realise its preciousness
I just adore you only

My Father, My Love
Please, hold me tight

Your bud splitting claws of repentance
Gauge me and I fall asleep
I just dream in my coffin of roses
For the hopeless dream of my sweet death

The pure, The idle
The deep crimson, pure white bride

Farewell, distant time...
