Such as a blowing gale
My fragile thoughts
Bites into my bosom
There is a blue wolf in my heart
It bleeds without any wounds

Lost, confused and wandering about
I let out sounds that makes no sense
It echoes through the mountains and the skies
Where would my cry reach

There is no name to call even if I fall down to earth
When scrambling together my shattered pride the foul water in the gutter, reflecting the new moon
Why do you show the tenderness of Spring

When I blend with someone else's loneliness for only a short time
The hand for salvation only shows its shadow
Even if what we want to see is something far beyond it
This place is so far from it, A blood-red battle field

Where is the place the wandering people
Will fall down to
The flower of evil is dark
The blue storm of my soul
Keep blowing and please never end

Haste, gasping, and crawling about
Trying to cut myself from evil desires
Going back and forth the rugged trails
When will my conflicts end

Did I know from birth
The warmth called love is so hollow
Unseeingly wanted my loving mother
In my days thy have given

Getting closer, and backing again
Is what I'm grasping just an illusion
What I hold in my arm is a double-edged sword
Stabbing each other with a stranger
Making sure that we are both alive in this world

Be in captive
Even if I snarl

Where are my unseen enemies
There is a blue wolf in my heart
How many sleepless nights have passed

The fine weather slashed to pieces
The blackish purple earth in chaos
And the evening glow like a miracle
Covered in these I am blood stained

Such as a blowing gale
My fragile thoughts
Bites into my bosom
There is a blue wolf in my heart
Without any tears my wounds hurt

Where is the place the wandering people
Will fall down to
The flower of evil is dark
The blue storm of my soul
Keep blowing and please never end

Lost, confused and wandering about
I let out sounds that makes no sense
It echoes through the mountains and the skies
One day my cry will reach you

The storm goes and the sunsets
Covered in sunshine I am blood stained
