<lyrics>
You have arrived here looking so weary
With a thousand wind blowing in your mind
Let me grant any wishes
You wish for to come true

Alf Layla wa Layla (One Thousand and One Nights)
A nightly talk in the bed
The gaspings of the nightingale
The oddly looking naked body

What you will wear upon your skin,
The carressing breath is satin
The lips are red velvet
My name is "love"

There is no one who will not be addicted to me
Whom can charm both body and soul
The fire of life is meant to be burnt in lust
Dizzied by the sweet dew and ah, what ecstasy
Until all your energy is drained to none

I see your face is still gloomy
The dark cave in your heart
The painful ache that can't be reached
I will seal it up for you

Iftah Ya Simsim
Say the magic spell
Open the door, The glorious veil

Don't be afraid and step out
There are corals at your feet
And your bed is made of jade
My name is "fortune"

Gold, silver, all the treasures
There are no one who will not be blinded by my gleam
To my glitter, even a king will bow down
Nothing is as beautiful as my glow
There are nothing you can't get by money

Alf Layla wa Layla (One Thousand and One Nights)
If you do not still feel well
Then why don't you get embraced
By the arms of the forbidden

Close your eyes and gaze
The mane of a black horse
A pair of black wings come forth
My name is "darkness"

There is no one who resists
To my sweetly depth which holds all
When I am poured into vanity I turn into liquor of love
Rose red blood will flush those pale masks

ABRACADABRA
I am the shadow
Which is always nestling upon you
Dreams will become satanic and even evil will turn into beauty
I am the one who will corrupt the boredom of this world

So, come, pass your soul over here
