All Time Low, The Reckless and The Brave

Long live the reckless and the brave, I don't think I want to be saved. My song has not been sung. So long live us.

Looking out at a town called Suburbia. Everybody's just fighting to fit in. Little rats running mazes, Having babies, It's a vicious little world, that we live in. Looking back at a life on the other side. I realize that I didn't fit in, didn't hate it, but I didn't quite relate it, To my precious little world.

Long live the reckless and the brave, I don't think I want to be saved. My song has not been sung. And long live the fast times, so come what may I don't think I wanna be saved. My song has not been sung.

Breaking out of a town called Suburbia. I remember everybody always saying, "Little brat must be crazy, never make it in our vicious little world.". Still I'm leaving. Got a van, got a chance, got my dignity. Got a dream, got a spark, Got somewhere to be, Take a breath, say goodbye to the precious little world.

Long live the reckless and the brave, I don't think I want to be saved. My song has not been sung. And long live the fast times so come what may I don't think I wanna be saved. My song has not been sung.
