Allman Brothers Band

Dreams

Demons

Another day in the life of a stranger

Surrounded by four walls that can't be seen

He knows this dude that lives uptown and he delivers

He often calls him for that perfect dream

But oh, he's got his demons

And they stay right by his side

Through his everyday hell, yeah

He loves his wine and his pretty women

He buys them everything just to stay around

He's got it made cause his daddy's got a bundle

He seldom reaches out but there's no one to be found

Except oh, he's still got them demons

And they stay right by his side

In his man-made hell

Oh, he's got his demons

And they by his side

Another day in the life of the lonely

All alone in a sold out crowd

He can always buy some cheap thrills with his money

His world of silence has become much too loud

But ho, don't forget them demons

They're still right by his side

Causing all kinds of hell, yeah
