Alphaville, Days full of wonder

When you feel so far away though youre close to everything And the feeling of estrangements creeping up on spiders legs Even in these days of wonder, even in the age of faith There are some who goin under There are some who never got it made So you passed so many years in a labyrinth of traces Running round and round they led to no one but yourself Here comes the eternal stranger He who has fallen from grace to the iron grounds And Im tolling my bell just to let you know Im here by your side in these days full of wonder In the ashes of your time when the dragon screams for more The reptiles make their comeback in your eyes And heroes fall for heroin and heaven falls for fake And doris daisies burn to hell on the grand parade of lies In the middle of the night when the last of God has died And the only friend youve got is the heartbeat of the clock That music plays for all time, the tv light is freezing The war-paint on your face..
