

Alphaville, Today

(Lyrics: Gold/music: Gold-Rusczyński)

Central park looks like a graveyard
It never rained like that before
I took the ferry to new jersey
Never coming back no more
In my hand i hold a ticket
Statue points up to the clouds
Now i'm leaving new york city
I can hear the seagulls' cries
Whenever i saw you, it felt like the first time
Whenever i kissed you, just like the first time
Whenever i hold you it was never the same
And i thought that the last time
Would never come
Today
Autumn's sun burns down on berlin
A turkish bride just passes by Someone plans a revolution
Little kites dance in the sky
I will always hear your heartbeat
I will always think of you
Laughter's ringing from the playgrounds
As i watch the children play
Ain't no doubt
Whenever i saw you,
It felt like the first time
Whenever i kissed you,
Just like the first time
Whenever i hold you
It was never the same
And i thought that the last time
Would never come
Today
Here comes the rain
Right now!