

Aluminum Group, Chocolates

I remember everything as I sit alone
All our mornings and our evening times
So I'm getting my coat
And your chocolates, yeah
All the buildings from the train pass me in a blur
And the trees are moving just as fast
And I'm moving along
With your chocolates, yeah
They substitute the telegram with the fax machine
What did you substitute me with? Yeah
Am I bringing you down
When I'm bringing you candy?
All I want is the best for you tonight
All I want is you to have
A life as sweet as it can be
And to know everything will be alright
They overtook the doorman with the intercom.
What did you overtake me with? Yeah
At your step, I feel the air as it starts to thin
Like the air that you had somehow vanished in Still I'm holding my breath
And your chocolates, yeah
Am I bringing you down
When I'm bringing you candy?
All I want is the best for you tonight
All I want is you to have
A life as sweet as it can be
And to know everything will be alright
So I'm leaving your door
And your chocolates, yeah
As I'm wandering on
Do you wonder, boy?
Do you wonder, boy?
(Am I bringing you down?)
Do you wonder, boy?
(Am I bringing you down?)
Do you wonder, boy?
(Am I bringing you down?)
Do you wonder
