

Amplifier, Neon

My spider sense is tingling
From the boys and the girls and the vortex singing
Just a second to hang upon my ears
Just a second to taste the salty tears

Judge not least you may be judged
Judge not least you may be judged
Judged by me, judged by me
Least you may be destroyed by me

Trouble come down on shoulders quick
And put a hymn of neon upon my lips
Now I'm spiralling into the void
My atoms split as love's reward
For the ten percent that I can't afford
Well maybe I'd fly free as a bird

Judge not least you may be judged
Judge not least you may be judged
Judged by me, judged by me
Least you may be destroyed by me

And without sleep, without remorse
While we're stuck on head-collision course
But my plate's already full
Of selfish people with selfish desires
And don't climb so high
That you can't come down
To tumble now is to surely die

Judge not least you may be judged
Least you may be judged
By me, judged by me
Least you may be loved by me

Judge not least you may be judged
Least you may be judged
Least you may be judged
Least you may be loved
