

Amy Studt, A New Day Breaks

Stumbling along down these streets again I can't help myself My pockets are light and so is my heart the lights are growing unbareably bright So wake up you stary skies and dance for me again I'll dry my eyes and Hopefully when a new day breaks
I can find the strength to start again and the clouds will clear and the hurt will mend
and i'll find my way back home all alone, all alone
once again
In life there are things you can't control I guess it must be fate but time is on no ones side it must be too late because when you think you're high and above the rest of the world the bridge beneath you will fall I found that in my heart theres a place that they can't find A place that they can't stop and so i'll say
Hopefully when a new day breaks
I can find the strength to start again
and the clouds will clear
and the hurt will mend
and i'll find my way back home
all alone, all alone
once again
Songs are made from fantasy and thoughts they make where dreams become reality its all fake cause when you think you're down and below the rest of the world the flowers around you will grow You'll find that in my heart theres a place that they can't find
A place that they can't stop
and so i'll say
Hopefully when a new day breaks
I can find the strength to start again
and the clouds will clear
and the hurt will mend
and i'll find my way back home
all alone, all alone
once again
Wake up you stary skies
and dance for me again
I'll dry my eyes
I'll dry my eyes
dry my eyes
I'll dry my eyes...