

Andrew Lloyd Webber, There's Me

All alone, you think you're on your own,
You think there's no one in the world who cares for you,
That isn't true, there's me.

I may not be the one you want to see,
but if you need someone who's kind then look behind,
And there you'll find, there's me.

I'll be near, standing by, never fear, you can cry,
In a while, you will smile, and I'll be there to see.

By yourself, you have to cry yourself,
Nobody else can cry the tears you have to cry,
But I will try, there's me.

Until then, when you're OK again,
You look around and I'm no longer there.
I'll still be here somewhere,
you're not alone, there's me, there's always me.

I'll still be here somewhere,
you're not alone, there's me, there's always me.
