

Anna F., Too Far

You and I under different stars you dream a lot and I keep chasing the past to remind you of who we are, you've been gone for a while in a distance another time when you lay with me in the stillness of night I'm there where we used to be calling out, calling out

Lay down, lay down on my shoulder, take me to the water, lets not talk it over
We're islands in an ocean, silences are broken, lay down on my shoulder as if we were still closer but we're too far, drifting too far
but we're too far, drifting too far

Feel the rush of my secret heart, forgive the light was the call of the dark can you hear what I never said, that I need what you are Take a minute and look around, take a look we're all alone you can never cut me out, don't look away now Take a minute and look around, been away for too long, for too long

Lay down, lay down on my shoulder, take me to the water, let's not talk it over
We're islands in an ocean, silences are broken,
but we're too far, drifting too far
but we're too far, drifting too far

In a night under strange stars, been awake for too long I'm wondering where you are, how did we go wrong you and I see the same stars, been awake for too long, for too long

Lay down, lay down on my shoulder, take me to the water, let's not talk it over
We're islands in an ocean, silences are broken,
lay down on my shoulder as if we were still closer
but we're too far, drifting too far
but we're too far, drifting too far

but we're too far, drifting too far
but we're too far, drifting too far

but we're too far, drifting too far
but we're too far, drifting too far
