Anna Ternheim, No Subtle Men

It's getting late I think my time is running out No-one special Nothing lasting within inside

How should I stay calm When panic lies just ahead Everyone can see my youth Hanging by a thread

No subtle men Came to my town No subtle men Begging for my hand

I'm one of few who's left When everyone has gone The train is leaving And it's too late to get on

So much for running When no-one stays to wait For another broken promise To slip my mind by mistake

Who would take my word On anything these days I felt so many times Saying I'm gonna change

No subtle men Came to my town No subtle men No lifelong friend Lives in my town No subtle men Begging for my hand
