

Anya Marina, If It Feels Right

If it feels right, you should make a movie starring all of your friends
You should put a spotlight on the little things
If it feels right

If you feel low, you could fall asleep inside a silo
You could bring your knapsack and your roller skates, and run away
If it feels right

If It feels right, you should talk about it for a long time
In the morning on and on

If you don't mind, you could figure out what makes a valentine
You could put a finger on what makes a girl weak
When you fall for things
Like the new voice on your machine
And the way he says,
"It's me."