

April Wine, Cat's Claw

April Wine
Electric Jewels
Cat's Claw
(myles goodwyn/jim clenck)
Published by summerlea music, ltd. - bmi

She huh, living in a cat's claw mind
Hoping you like what you find
But you'd better take it real slow
So many things you don't know
Sweeter than the sweet that comes to the brain
Just upon the threshold of pain
That's the hold you have over me
Woman won't you please set me free

You took me places higher than i ever wanted to go
You took me places higher than any man should ever hope to go

Strange love, torn between the heart and the soul
Laughing while the body grows cold
Somewhere that i should never be
Woman won't you please let me be
Free me, from the darkness here underground
Screaming but i can't hear a sound
Drowning in the pleasures of pain
I can't see the sky, for the rain

You took me places higher than i ever wanted to go
You took me places higher than any man should ever hope to go, oh no

Reaching for the sun to come and take me home
Sitting in a chair and sinking like a stone

Sweeter than the sweet that comes to the brain
Just upon the threshold of pain
That's the hold you have over me
Woman won't you please set me free

You took me places higher than i ever wanted to go
You took me places higher than any man should ever hope to go, oh no