Architects, tear gas

never afraid to be despicable no stood at the brink and you're still looking for the last laugh you're only crying from the tear gas somebody turn us inside out maybe you think that i'm too cynical yeah freezing to death stood in the shadow of an avalanche are you looking at the hourglass? it's do or die any other time than now any other time than now just one life i guess you're gonna go to hell quess you're gonna go to hell tell a lie anything is possible we could be unstoppable be less than no one to me just leave me in the mercy seat surely this ain't the fucking pinnacle? these modern saints would have us writing our own epitaph well we knew that it would never last somebody turn us inside out there's nothing left of ourselves that we won't sell we are well aware no one can stand without a spine but if we never dare we'll only flatten out the line