

Ariel Pink, The List (My Favorite Song)

this is my favourite song the list

when this song became my favourite song i wrote the list it sat on top for weeks it pushed the others down down but I never reached the bottom of the list and I would cry and cry cause it would lie and lie

fast forward one month

i wrote that list with it on top for weeks it pushed my favourite song down second third and fifth but i never reached the end of that list time has torn that list to pieces i know

cause it had lied and lied

why did that song have to lie to me why couldn't it be just another
it was the wrong song as long as this went on

for years i put my faith in print as if the truth could be discovered there my list could hold my soul intact like paintings like photographs

why did my song have to lie to me
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
i never should have put my favourite song on the list
