

Art Bears, The Song Of The Martyrs

All our lives, all of us
Whose bones you have Climbed on were all our lives wasted?
were we martyred to Finish with all forms
Of slavery forever only
To witness our offspring
Complacent and bought off
With scraps to see
Workmen and women Divided?

O as we look about us
Things seem worse than ever.