

Aruna, Not Your Mommy

Should I be your shelter?
Should I let you wear me down
And bend over backwards
To keep you safe and sound?
Cuz youre just so helpless
When Im not around
But you know I love you...sometimes

Well I get so tired
Trying to cover your mistakes,
Trying to pick up the pieces
Whenever something breaks
I could put it back together
I could wash it all away
But tonight Id rather sit you down and say

Get a clue
Learn how to live your life
Cuz Im not your mommy
And I got better things to do
Than clean up after you
And save you from yourself
Were not in high school anymore

I could let you down easy
Or I could turn around and run
And leave you at the mercy
Of the damage that youve done
But I know Id get nowhere
If I tried to walk away
Cuz youre all Ive got
But still Im not afraid to say

Get a clue
Learn how to live your life
Cuz Im not your mommy
And I got better things to do
Than clean up after you
And save you from yourself
Were not in high school anymore

There are days Ill start to come apart
But something keeps me together
In a moment of grace, it falls into place
And I see that I need you as much as you need me

Cuz you just might be addictive
If you werent so immature
But were not in high school anymore
So learn how to live your life
Cuz Im not your mommy
And I got better things to do
Than clean up after you
And save you from yourself
Were not in high school anymore
So learn how to live your life
Cuz Im not your mommy
And I got better things to do
Than clean up after you
And save you from yourself
Were not in high school anymore