

Ashton Allen, Supernatural

That too familiar scene
Where I'm stuck inside a dream
Wake up in my car
Play some music in the dark
I have to face my fears
That I've wasted all these years
Just scared I never knew
My potential here with you
And so I say
I'm fading but I'm never going down without a fight
So I'm waiting for your something supernatural tonight.
Knocking on your door
You open up then let me in
I've heard it all before
But I'm falling short again
Nothing on my arm
But a body
You stay here in control
You say I'm never gonna win another day
No not today
So I'm fading but I'm never going down without a fight
I'm waiting for your something supernatural tonight.
I'm fading like a fireball that burned out way too bright
I'm waiting for your something supernatural tonight.
Do you really think its necessary, all this in between?
Do you really know that this is where I find out what it means
To be all you ever wanted me to be?
To see all you ever wanted me to see?
I see two stars collide
And it makes me starry eyed
It truly disappears
For a hundred thousand years
I should get out of this car
Go chase that shooting star
If I'm stuck here where I stand
Too much longer than I'll never walk away
I'm fading but I'm never going down without a fight
I'm waiting for your something supernatural tonight.
I'm fading like a fireball that burned out way too bright
I'm waiting for your something supernatural tonight.
