

Asia, The Higher You Climb

(Downes/Warman/Woolfenden)

There is no comeback from the big divide
Maybe there's a future to be found waiting on the other side
If it's illusion, then what is real?
In life's confusion, take what you can
Fight it till you reach the goal.

And the higher you climb you can fall
But never look down
And the faster you run, it's a crawl
To the end of the line.

Seems all directions lead to one place
There are no signposts guiding me
It takes a long time to see

And the higher you climb you can fall
But never look down
And the faster you run, it's a crawl
To the end of the line.

The age of reason has come and gone
The changing seasons move on and on until you reach the goal

And the higher you climb you can fall
But never look down
And the faster you run, it's a crawl
To the end of the line.
