

Attica Blues, It's Not Enough

Opens her eyes,
Doubting she slept at all,
Waiting for him,
Wanting the call
It's getting late,
And she's tired of it
Where could he be?
Who could he be with?
She doesn't trust,
But she still needs him
One thing is known - that she can't let go

It's not enough to think that you're in love
It's not enough to need
It's not enough just to be
You have to show that it's real

He feels the same - still thinks nothing's changed
She'll always be there,
No one is to blame
She's the only one, but something's wrong here
Disturbing silence starting to creep in
It's passing by them,
The friendship's wearing thin
Long as love survives it's alright in his eyes

But it's not enough to think that you're in love
It's not enough to need
It's not enough just to be
You have to know what it means

They argue over waht never bothered them before
Don't realize they're doing it anymore
Immune to pain,
Just let it wash away

It's not enough
