Aurora, Ethereal Goddess

innocent and erotic she slept in the arms of nature she was the princess of passion the light of day, fairly and sinful she woke up to a dewfull morning which kissed her body and the feeling of vibrations she flew down to the sea for bathing and there... she was lost lost forever in the grip of tenderness

...a tiny voice said...

float into me make love to me as million drops like these have people soved into me

...who are you?... i am the one who reflects the sun i and the waves carresses you gentle child you must breath before you sleep so child breath

...she says...

the nature inside me the trunk without life dirty water and the sun isn't smiling why god why the princess opened up her never opening flower and combined in passion the two lovers were forever... the end of a tragical love story